

MANAGING MARKET VOLATILITY

AS OF 3-31-22

Generally speaking, most people believe that stocks are more volatile than bonds. To illustrate, consider the S&P 500® Index. In the ten-year period ended 3-31-2022, the index experienced 33 quarters with positive returns, or 83% of the time and 7 with negative returns, 17% of the time. The best performing quarter was 20.54% (2Q 2020) and the worst -19.60% (1Q 2020) with an average quarter of 3.71% over the entire 10-year period. Investors need to accept that with the ups, come the downs, but the challenge is to find investment managers who perform well in all markets. The table below illustrates the calendar quarter performance from the inception of each of the Ave Maria Mutual Funds. We analyzed the positive and negative quarters of our funds' respective benchmark indexes and calculated the percentage of times that we outperformed. Because of our value orientation, it is not surprising that we have performed better in down market quarters, but still generate a respectable amount of outperformance in up markets.

Fund	Inception Date	Benchmark	Performance vs. Benchmarks		Better in
			% of times outperformed in positive quarters	% of times outperformed in negative quarters
Bond	5-1-2003	Bloomberg Intermediate US Govt/Credit Index	59%	76%	Down Market
Value	5-1-2001	S&P MidCap 400® Index	34%	56%	Down Market
Growth	5-1-2003	S&P 500® Index	49%	61%	Down Market
Rising Dividend	5-2-2005	S&P 500® Value Index	48%	65%	Down Market
